Are there different kinds of gelato?
Yes, the two most popular distinctions are milk based and water based. The water base is more common in southern Italy and Sicily and is what is known as sorbetto today.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ICE CREAM & GELATO?
Ice cream can have up to 60% air pumped into it to stretch the quantity. Gelato has significantly less air in it, creating a much denser, richer, higher quality product. Secondly, our gelato is made with milk as opposed to heavy cream, resulting in a much lower fat dessert (4-8% compared to ice creams 10-26%). Thirdly, gelato is served at a slightly warmer temperature, further enhancing its taste as it first hits your palette!
